What To Drink Now: Earth Day Wines

Organic, biodynamic, sustainable and natural wines to toast our planet.

HAYLEY HAMILTON COGILL | PUBLISHED IN FOOD & DRINK | APRIL 26, 2019

Our earth is warming. And it's changing the wine world. Seasons are becoming hotter, and shorter, with wineries across the world harvesting their fruit two-to-six weeks earlier than they did 30 years ago, with grapes having lower acidity, higher alcohol, and sometimes cooked-fruit flavors. There are vintners fighting climate change, farming as clean and green as possible, employing sustainable, organic and biodynamic techniques in wine production. On this Earth Day, toast the wineries embracing these techniques.

DOMAINE CARNEROS.

Premium sparkling wine producer, Domaine Carneros is among the recipients for the 2019 California Green Medal Business Award for their Certified Sustainable efforts in the vineyard and winery. The Cuvée de la Pompadour Brut Rose ($37) leaps from the glass with effervescent bubbles and aromas of raspberry, tangerine, and peach.
