Which wines to have on hand when you're entertaining—and what should you bring as a guest

BY RACHEL KING November 13, 2021

The holiday season typically means a lot of get-togethers (both in-person and virtually) that include wine—from reds to whites, and more. But determining which wines to serve that can satisfy a diverse group of guests—from casual wine drinkers to certified sommeliers—can be daunting. You can't always please everyone, but there are more crowdpleasers out there if you know where to look.

John Kapon, chairman of Acker Wines, the longest-running wine merchant in the U.S., also recommends offering a sparkling wine—as well as a more full-bodied white and a versatile red wine—for pouring throughout the evening.
