PROSECCO.

Everyone loves Prosecco, and why not? If you're having 20 over sometime soon, you can buy enough for everyone and not have to mortgage the house just as interest rates are rising. The problem is that too many taste the same to us: pleasant, but interchangeable. To improve your odds, it's a good idea to look for "Prosecco Superiore D.O.C.G." on the label.

We especially liked Drusian ($16 or so).

We wrote: "It was dry and clean, with good acidity and just enough weight to make it real, like an agricultural product, grown in the soil."
